Notes

For master student

If the Undergraduate or Master candidates have a Spanish B2 level, they will be admitted in any School without restrictions.

If the Undergraduate or Master candidates do not have a Spanish B2 level and therefore they intend to study full time in English, we advise students to combine the 30 ECTs between regular subjects and their final degree or master's work.

Nominated candidates, who intend to develop a final research work at UPV, shall belong to the areas of study that were agreed in the inter-institutional agreement with each partner. In this way, UPV professors who are already working with researchers from your institution can collaborate with the final degree or master project.

for Phd student

PhD students will need to have a letter of pre-admission from Professor UPV who will supervise their research before their nomination is admitted.

Language restrictions does not apply for PhD students.
