 Applicant has a relationship with UPV in the field. Visited them in 2019 and subsequently published a paper in the field related to this Erasmus Plus project. Has a course which is related to the project and would present on this when visiting again.
 Has collaborated with colleagues in COM and EBE in work related to the Erasmus Plus project. They were part of the collaboration and research publication. She'll be engaging with the UPV students to evaluate their engagement with issues around team management. She hopes to bring this back to UCT to inform instruction in her courses.
 Alignment with UCT Vision 2030 and Transformation:
 Question by TG : Future plans with UPV for furthering the relationship; very involved with the School of Design Thinking who deliver a module for Claudia's course. The visiting UPV academic will be involved in delivery of this module when she comes in the near future. CK has a growing interest in design thinking. CK will reciprocate if she visits UPV thus allowing students from both universities to benefit from this work. In this, the teaching exchange will help ensure reciprocity and will contribute to internationalisation both through student mobility and at home. It will also help students from both universities grow through online collaboration in the related courses offered by both universities. This will also contribute to ensuring that course delivery is informed by the latest research.
